Shibuya, Tokyo, 1969, Daido Moriyama

Coinciding with Daido Moriyama: A Retrospective at The Photographers' Gallery, we are delighted to offer our collectors the opportunity to purchase prints by one of the world's most innovative and influential artists and street photographers. All images exhibited in the retrospective are available to order as prints through the Print Sales Gallery.

For more than sixty years, Daido Moriyama (b. 1938) has used his camera to interrogate and revolutionise the way we look at the world with his dense, grainy images. Even today, Moriyama's pioneering artistic spirit and visual intensity remain groundbreaking. Daido Moriyama: A Retrospective traces the path of a photographer who transformed the way we see photography and questioned the very nature of photography itself.

Championing photography as a democratic language, Moriyama inserted himself up close with Japanese society, capturing the clash of Japanese tradition with an accelerated Westernization in post-war Japan. With his non-conformist approach and desire to challenge the medium, his work is tirelessly unpretentious, raw, blurred, radical and grainy and has defined the style of an entire generation.

"Forget everything you've learned on the subject of photography for the moment, and just shoot. Take photographs - of anything and everything, whatever catches your eye. Don't pause to think."

– Daido Moriyama
